Preface

The growing interest in typewriter mystery games has been little short of phenomenal. From the time that they first appeared in the Artistic Typing Journal, in 1945, until the present, where they are being featured in the Journal of Business Education, thousands of teachers have written to me, expressing their enthusiasm and interest.

The games in this booklet are the outgrowth of a demand by students, teachers, and others for additional typewriter mysteries to solve. None of those appearing here have ever before been published. Incidentally, it required about one thousand hours to compose this particular group of games.

Yet although it takes a great deal of time and effort to compose a typewriter mystery, it is comparatively easy to solve, since the directions are given line by line. Another factor that contributes to the ease of solution is the fact that it is unnecessary to use the variable line spacer.

Besides the fascination and relaxation involved in solving them, they may also be used for bulletin board display, as projects for commercial clubs, and as models for needlework designs. When framed, they make excellent and unusual wall decorations for home, school, or office.

With the use of black ribbons, the designs appear as silhouettes or etchings (in sampler format), as the case may be. If colored ribbons are used, the artistic possibilities are quite numerous. I suggest that the designs be first worked out with black ribbon. The typist can then arrange his own color pattern by following the black-and-white copy line by line.

SAMPLE DESIGN

Directions: Insert paper in the typewriter, space down 21 single spaces from the top, set side margins at 20 and 66 and type, line by line. Symbols: "5X" means strike "X" five times; "3sp" means strike space bar three times, etc. Keep shift lock depressed throughout.

In order to save space, only the margin settings and the character to be used will be given for the mysteries that follow; the general directions, given above, will not be repeated.

SOLUTION TO SAMPLE DESIGN

Although no specific solutions, as such, are given for the rest of the mystery games in this booklet, some--but not all--of the designs on the back cover, greatly reduced, were worked out from the directions given here. However, to maintain both the mystery and suspense elements, you will have no way of knowing what design will appear until partially (and, in some cases, fully) completed.
